Human Strengths and Resilience fills an important gap in current literature on trauma survivors by explicitly focusing on international work concerning positive psychology and strength-based approaches to post-traumatic growth (PTG) and resilience in understudied developing nations like Haiti, Cambodia, India, and Syria. Verschoelen in een van de bijlagen van de DSM-IV treft men de Cultural Formulation of Diagnosis aan. Volgens de samenstellers van Cultuur, classificatie en diagnose krijgt dit model in Nederland ten onrechte weinig aandacht. Gezien de toenemende culturele en etnische diversiteit van de Nederlandse bevolking is een meer cultuursensitieve diagnostiek noodzakelijk voor een toegankelijke geestelijke gezondheidszorg. Met de publicatie van dit boek willen de samenstellers de mogelijkheden die de Cultural Formulation of Diagnosis hiertoe biedt meer bekendheid geven. Dit werkmodel blijkt zeer behulpzaam te zijn bij het analyseren van de complexe interculturele processen in de diagnostiek en hulpverlening.In Cultuur, classificatie en diagnose komen twintig hulpverleners aan het woord die de bruikbaarheid van de Cultural Formulation of Diagnosis aan de hand van een casus uit hun eigen psychiatrische praktijk toetsen. Zowel allochtone als autochtone minderheidsgroepen komen aan bod. De reeks cassussen biedt een afspiegeling van de uiteenlopende cliënttypen die zich melden bij de geestelijke gezondheidszorg in Nederland.

Edited by a clinical psychologist who has been on the ground helping to develop psychosocial support for Ebola survivors in one of the hardest-hit regions of West Africa, this book explains the devastating emotional aspects of the epidemic and its impact on survivors and the population in West Africa, families in the diaspora, and people in the United States and other countries. It also describes lessons learned from past epidemics like HIV/AIDS and SARS, and valuable approaches to healing from future epidemics. • Addresses the various myths and resulting psychological, social, and economic harm caused by Ebola • Presents models of psychosocial support and help offered by local as well as international aid organizations • Covers efforts to build the mental health infrastructure of the affected countries, revealing the importance of integrating mental health care into primary health care • Explains government and media responses to the Ebola epidemic • Supplies critically important information for psychologists and mental health workers, health professionals of all disciplines, public health students, government officials, policymakers, and all individuals and groups interested in providing psychosocial support • Includes a foreword by an important official and endorsements by other significant stakeholders in the fight against Ebola

This book addresses the psychosocial and medical issues of forced migration due to war, major disasters and political as well as climate changes. The topics are discussed in the context of public health and linked to organizational, legal and practical strategies that can offer guidance to professionals, as well as governmental and non-governmental organizations. Both internal and international displacement present substantial challenges that require new solutions and integrated approaches. Issues covered include an overview of current health challenges in the new refugee crises; medicine and mental health in disaster areas, long-term displacement and mental health, integration of legal, medical, social and health economic issues, children and unaccompanied minors, ethical challenges in service provision, short and long-term issues in host countries, models of crisis intervention, critical issues, such as suicide prevention, new basic and "minimal" intervention models adapted to limited resources in psychosocial and mental health care, rebuilding of health care in post-disaster/conflict countries, training and burn-out prevention. The book was developed in collaboration with the World Psychiatric Association, and is endorsed by Fabio Grandi (UN High Commissioner for Refugees), Manfred Nowak (former UN Special Rapporteur for Torture), and Jorge Aroche (President of IRCT).

Het boek biedt een theoretisch model op basis waarvan algemene omgangsproblemen en specifieke professionele problemen in kaart gebracht en geanalyseerd kunnen worden. Vanuit dat model worden vervolgens voorstellen gedaan voor de beargumenteerde benadering van de betreffende problematiek. In het boek staat veel casuïstiek, ook uit derdewereldlanden. In deze tweede druk betreffen de belangrijkste veranderingen een nadere uitwerking van het begrip cultuur (hoofdstuk 3), omgaan met tolken (hoofdstuk 7), de combinatie van evidence based én value based (zingeving) hulpverlening (hoofdstuk 8), het omgaan met verzoeken om een geneeskundige verklaring (idem) en psychotherapie vanuit verschillende culturele configuraties van het zelf (hoofdstuk 10). Verder is er recente literatuur verwerkt in deze druk en zijn er verschillende verwijzingen naar internetsites in opgenomen.

This new volume, Disaster Recovery: Community-Based Psychosocial Support in the Aftermath, provides a wealth of realistic and applicable information for addressing mental health related issues resulting from disasters. It will provide readers with both a theoretical and practical look at community-based psychosocial support and community consultation from an interdisciplinary perspective. The last thirty years have brought to the fore the importance of psychosocial support as an integrator and cross-cutting theme in disaster response. The need for a timely volume on this topic at this time is based on recent world efforts to include the topic within the disaster risk reduction framework. In this volume, the authors share their practical knowledge about development of community-based psychosocial support based on the hundred of thousands of people in fourteen countries and three continents who provided an immense amount of knowledge about psychosocial support through their participation in programs. These programs helped to lead the way in sharing the strategies and tools presented in here. This book uses case study methodology and practical examples to share how communities can come together, care for themselves, and use their social capital and problem-solving skills to survive and thrive. The information in the book will aid in the development of program offerings for mental health and psychosocial support in disasters and humanitarian emergencies. The final section will provide the components of a proposal for external work and a chapter on monitoring and evaluation. The book will include case studies to help illustrate the content. Edited by Dr. Joseph O. Prewitt Diaz, a 2008 recipient of the American Psychological Association's International Humanitarian Award, the book is based on his extensive experience and existing research in the field. The information provided here will be helpful to those working in or teaching on disaster management and support, including professors and instructors, students in social work and psychology, government and non-government agencies personnel in the field in places where emerging conflicts are occurring, and many others.
