A comprehensive study of the causes and consequences of war in the twentieth century

The choices that individuals make in moments of crisis can transform them. By focusing on fictional characters trapped on fictional islands, the book examines how individuals react when forced to make hard choices within the liminal space of a "prison" island. At stake is the perception of choice: do characters believe that they have the power to choose, or do they think that they are at the mercy of fate? The results reveal certain patterns--psychological, historical, social, and political--that exist across a variety of popular/public cultures and time periods. This book focuses on how the interplay between liminality and the Locus of Control theory creates dynamic sites of negotiated meaning. This psychological concept has never before been used for literary analysis. Offered here as an alternative to the defects of Freudian psychology, the Locus of Control theory has been proven reliable in thousands of studies, and the results have been found, with few exceptions, to be consistent in both women and men. That consistency is explored through close readings of islands found in popular culture books, films, and television shows, with suggestions for future research.

This Rondo Awards-nominated study describes how Richard Connell's famous story of 1924, "The Most Dangerous Game," has persisted into the New Century as an indelible influence. Michael H. Price and the late George E. Turner began tracing that influence as early as the 1960s, while interviewing the filmmakers responsible for the first adaptation, 1932's THE MOST DANGEROUS GAME. The research has continued apace, and it all comes together in THE HOUNDS OF ZAROFF. The book compiles kindred films, remakes, knockoffs, ripoffs, and toss-offs into a 250-page survey -- from the original film, through such famous titles as PREDATOR and THE TEXAS CHAIN SAW MASSACRE, through rank obscurities like WALK THE DARK STREET and CONFESSIONS OF A PSYCHO CAT. The coverage extends into the present day, with the HUNGER GAMES pictures of 2012-2013 providing a coda. A coda, yes, but never a cul-de-sac for one of the most often-filmed stories ever to see the light of cold print.

Sanger Rainsford has just been shipwrecked on an island in the middle of the sea. When he finds a mysterious castle rising up out of the jungle, he knows he's not alone. At first, he thinks he's been rescued. But soon he is fighting for his life... Called "the most popular short story in the English language," The Most Dangerous Game has been adapted for high intermediate learners of English (CEFR B2). This book includes vocabulary support, notes on the story, and discussion/critical thinking questions before and after the story.

You've seen movies and TV shows or read books that have supernatural ideas. A lot of times, it's entertaining. David Bordwell's new book is at once a history of film criticism, an analysis of how critics interpret film, and a proposal for an alternative program for film studies. It is an anatomy of film criticism meant to reset the agenda for film scholarship. As such Making Meaning should be a landmark book, a focus for debate from which future film study will evolve. Bordwell systematically maps different strategies for interpreting films and making meaning, illustrating his points with a vast array of examples from Western film criticism. Following an introductory chapter that sets out the terms and scope of the argument, Bordwell goes on to show how critical institutions constrain and contain the very practices they promote, and how the interpretation of texts has become a central preoccupation of the humanities. He gives lucid accounts of the development of film criticism in France, Britain, and the United States since World War II; analyzes this development through two important types of criticism, thematic-explicatory and symptomatic; and shows that both types, usually seen as antithetical, in fact have much in common. These diverse and even warring schools of criticism share conventional, rhetorical, and problem-solving techniques—a point that has broad-ranging implications for the way critics practice their art. The book concludes with a survey of the alternatives to criticism based on interpretation and, finally, with the proposal that a historical poetics of cinema offers the most fruitful framework for film analysis.

Vietnam tijdens de oorlog. De mannen van de Alpha Company vechten tegen de vijand maar ook tegen de eenzaamheid, de angst en de woede. Onder hun wapens en bepakking koesteren ze foto's en brieven van hun geliefde of familie. Aan het front hebben ze alleen elkaar om de rauwe werkelijkheid het hoofd te bieden. Ieder van hen komt aan het woord in deze magistrale hommage aan de mannen die hun leven waagden in een van de meest controversiële oorlogen uit de Amerikaanse geschiedenis. Tim O'Brien verweeft ieder verhaal tot een ragfijn geheel, een subtiel spel van feit en fictie. Twintig jaar na verschijnen heeft dit boek nog niets van zijn zeggingskracht verloren. Wat ze droegen toont op onvergetelijke wijze de onscherpe lijn tussen waarheid en realiteit, moed en angst, oorlog en vrede. Spanning over a century of cinema and comprised of 127 films, this book analyzes the cinematic incarnations of the "uncanniest place on earth"--wax museums. Nothing is as it seems at a wax museum. It is a place of wonder, horror and mystery. Will the figures come to life at night, or are they very much dead with corpses hidden beneath their waxen shells? Is the genius hand that molded them secretly scarred by a terrible tragedy, longing for revenge? Or is it a sinner's sanctum, harboring criminals with countless places to hide in plain sight? This chronological analysis includes essential behind the scenes information in addition to authoritative research comparing the creation of "real" wax figures to the "reel" ones seen onscreen. Publicly accessible or hidden away in a maniac's lair, wax museums have provided the perfect settings for films of all genres to thrillingly play out on the big screen since the dawn of cinema.

The 1980s saw the peak of a moral panic over fantasy role-playing games such as Dungeons and Dragons. A coalition of moral entrepreneurs that included representatives from the Christian Right, the field of psychology, and law enforcement claimed that these games were not only psychologically dangerous but an occult religion masquerading as a game. Dangerous Games explores both the history and the sociological significance of this panic. Fantasy role-playing games do share several functions in common with religion. However, religion—as a socially constructed world of shared meaning—can also be compared to a fantasy role-playing game. In fact, the claims of the moral entrepreneurs, in which they presented themselves as heroes battling a dark conspiracy, often resembled the very games of imagination they condemned as evil. By attacking the imagination, they preserved the taken-for-granted status of their own socially constructed reality. Interpreted in this way, the panic over fantasy-role playing games yields new insights about how humans play and together construct and maintain meaningful worlds. Laycock's clear and accessible writing ensures that Dangerous Games will be required reading for those with an interest in religion, popular culture, and social behavior, both in the classroom and beyond.

Achterflap "Als ik een lied van Afrika ken - zo peinsde ik - van de giraffe en van de Afrikaanse nieuwe maan, van de ploegen in het veld en de bezwete gezichten van de koffieplukkers, kent Afrika dan ook een lied van mij?" Out of Africa is een onwaarschijnlijk mooi geschreven roman over het leven op een koffieplantage in Afrika. In 1937 schreef Karen Blixen haar memoires en daarin doet ze hartstochtelijk verslag van haar avonturen in Kenia. Over de natuur van de Highlands, de mentaliteit van de verschillende stammen, de gewoontes van de Kikoejoe, de Somali en de Masai. De roman is een veelstemmig lied van prachtige verhalen, de moeite waard door zowel de mooie schrijfstijl als de diepe interesse voor de inheemse bevolking en de liefde voor de natuur. Karen Blixen hield van het Afrikaanse landschap met zijn rijke plant- en diersoorten. Zij voelde zich thuis bij de oorspronkelijke bewoners, voor wie zij raadgeefster, dokter, rechter en lerares was. 'Onbevooroordeeldheid, zelfspot en waardering voor ironie van het lot zijn eigenschappen die Blixen met de Afrikanen deelt en daarop is hun wederzijdse verstandhouding op gebaseerd. Deze eigenschappen geven aan Blixens lyrische schildering van een verloren paradijs een onbevengene en lichtvoetige karakter.' - Manet van Montfrans in NRC Handelsblad 'Haar verslag van haar avonturen in Afrika, geschreven nadat ze haar geliefde plantage moest opgeven en teurgkeerde naar Denemarken, is dat van een meesterverteller. Een vrouw die door John Updike "een van de meest pittoreske en tevens flamboyante literaire persoonlijkheden van de eeuw werd gekarakteriseerd." - The Times 'Karen Blixen schrijft prachtig. Een aanrader om te lezen. Een ware klassieker.' - The New York Times Karen Blixen, barones von Blixen-Finecke (Rungsted, 17 april 1885 - 7 september 1962), schreef onder het pseudoniem Isak Dinesen en publiceerde in het Deens en het Engels. Naast het semi-autobiografische Out of Africa, over haar tijd in Kenia, publiceerde ze nog zeven andere boeken. De roman werd in 1985 onder de oorspronkelijke titel Out of Africa verfilmd door Sydney Pollack, met Meryl Streep en Robert Redford in de hoofdrollen.

Je weet dat je dit wil is een prikkelende verhalenbundel over seks, daten en het moderne leven. Roupenians verhalen gaan over vrouwen thuis, op het werk, op een date, bij de dokter, met hun gezin en met hun vrienden. Vrouwen die worstelen met lust, boetedoening, schuld en woede. De verhalen fascineren maar wekken ook afkeer op, angst en verrukking, weerzin en opwinding. Je weet dat je dit wil toont aan dat Kristen Roupenian een gedurfde nieuwe stem is in de Amerikaanse literatuur. In een geestige, bijtende, ironische en expliciete stijl verkent ze de verstoorde machtsverhouding tussen mannen en vrouwen – en doet er nog een schepje bovenop.

Concepts in Film Theory is a continuation of Dudley Andrew's classic, The Major Film Theories. In writing now about contemporary theory, Andrew focuses on the key concepts in film study -- perception, representation, signification, narrative structure, adaptation, evaluation, identification, figuration, and interpretation. Beginning with an introductory chapter on the current state of film theory, Andrew goes on to build an overall view of film, presenting his own ideas on each concept, and giving a sense of the interdependence of these concepts. Andrew provides lucid explanations of theories which involve perceptual psychology and structuralism; semiotics and psychoanalysis; hermeneutics and genre study. His clear approach to these often obscure theories enables students to acquire the background they need to enrich their understanding of film -- and of art.

The present volume is the fifth in the series of yearbooks with the title Globalistics and Globalization Studies. The subtitle of the present volume is Global Transformations and Global Future. We become more and more accustomed to think globally and to see global processes. And our future can all means be global. However, is this statement justified? Indeed, in recent years, many have begun to claim that globalization has stalled, that we are rather dealing with the process of anti-globalization. Will not we find ourselves at some point again in an edifice spanning across the globe, but divided into national apartments, separated by walls of high tariffs and mutual suspicion? Of course, some setbacks are always possible, because the process of globalization cannot develop smoothly. It is a process which is itself emerging from contradictions and is shaped by a new contradiction. They often go much further than underlying systemic changes allow. They break forward, as the vanguard of a victorious army, and then often meet resistance of various social and political forces and may suddenly start to roll back just at the moment when everyone expects their further offensive. We believe that this is what is happening with globalization at present. The yearbook will be interesting to a wide range of researchers, teachers, students and all those who are concerned about global issues.

ABSTRACT: This qualitative research study documents the observed and reported experiences of incorporating drama-in-education strategies into the study of short stories in a ninth-grade applied English classroom. Using noted experts, including Neelands and Goode (2003), Swartz (1995), and Perry (2005), the study defines drama-in-education as the experience of behaving as though one is other than himself or herself, in another place and time. Students are led through an improvisational learning experience through play, with the teacher acting as both facilitator and participant. Over the course of the study students explored five short stories, including "The Lady, or the Tiger?" by Frank R. Stockton, "The Most Dangerous Game," by Richard Connell, "Rules of the Game" by Amy Tan, "The Cask of Amontillado" by Edgar Allan Poe, and "The Scarlet Ibis" by James Hurst. The teacher-researcher incorporated varied drama-in-education strategies into the study of each short story, experimenting with roleplay, writing in role, tableaux, and writing and performing in dramatic form. The author suggests that the utilization of various drama-in-education strategies, not only in applied, or average, English classes but also in any learning environment, may improve engagement, creativity, reading skills, a sense of community, motivation and enthusiasm, and frequency of independent reading. The author finishes with contemplating the possibilities of incorporating drama-in-education with other ability levels, subjects, and grade levels.
